

Thomas Bacas
Data Scientist
thomasbacas@gmail.com
Arlington, VA 22207

October 18, 2018

Dear Key Bank Hiring,

I have been pursuing a new position as a Data Scientist and I found your job opening on your linkedin. Key Bank is a fantastic organization and I was excited to hear that you are interested in data science as a organization.

Recently I moved from a financial/business analytics role to a focus on data driven insights and information strategy. Over the course of my data science immersive program I fell in love with data science as a profession and jumped headlong into further understanding data analytics.

Your company prides itself on developing information that is pertinent to success for businesses and organizations. Being able to provide information is essential for any business and is invaluable as an industry. Your mission to provide your clients with top of the line products while cultivating a relationship with them is inspiring. Being a business does not mean mindlessly serving your clients, but developing connections to provide better support.

These ideals mirror my own, being able to work for an organization like your company would mean combining both my professional and personal goals. Being able to use my data science skill set while developing a substantial and meaningful product for your customers is a goal I can support and cherish.

Thanks for your consideration.